Dear Sir / Madam,

The Government of India has initiated a campaign aimed at increasing awareness about the prevalent problem of spitting in India. The objective is to induce people to raise their voice against this social problem and enhance administrative measures to stop people from spitting in public. Rampant spitting is spreading communicable diseases including serious ailments like TB. Spitting in public places is a sickening sight that most of us witness every day.

The youth can take an active part in raising awareness among the public. Activities like rallies, public education events on the subject, sponsoring anti-spitting campaigns that prohibit spitting, littering, vandalism, damaging greenery, smoking in public places may be conducted. The college NSS wing can also take up an initiative in this regard. Posters and stickers linking spitting to health problems, especially those related to tobacco consumption may also be hoarded in the campuses.

You are requested to make all concerned aware on aspects of this malady.

You are also requested to take necessary urgent steps on the points suggested above in your university and in all the colleges affiliated to your university.

With regards,

Yours sincerely,

(Rajnish Jain)
